

Watamu

Watamu is a small town on the Kenyan coast located approximately 120kms north of Mombasa – Kenya’s second largest city. It is also 20kms south of Malindi – Vasco de Gama’s first landing point on the coast of East Africa. Watamu’s shoreline features pristine white sand beaches and offshore coral formations arranged in different bays and sheltered by a reef. The area is protected as part of the Watamu Marine National Park and is considered one of the best snorkeling and diving areas on the coast of Africa.

Beyond captivating surrounding, Watamu’s unspoiled beaches beckon, inviting you to explore the crystal- clear waters and vibrant marine life. Embark on thrilling water sports adventures or simply bask in the sun, on the white sand’s tranquility of this coastal paradise. The Marine Park is renowned worldwide for its natural beauty and boasts a diverse marine life from the visiting whale sharks and manta rays to three species of sea turtle.
